

THE OSHA 10-HOUR GENERAL INDUSTRY COURSE
Bloodborne Pathogens

Bloodborne Pathogens

Two specific bloodborne pathogens are:

- Hepatitis B Virus (HBV)
- Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV)

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

THE OSHA 10-HOUR GENERAL INDUSTRY COURSE
Bloodborne Pathogens

Routes of Transmission

Bloodborne pathogens can be transmitted in the following ways:

- Injection
- Mucous membrane exposure
- Sexual Contact

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

THE OSHA 10-HOUR GENERAL INDUSTRY COURSE
Bloodborne Pathogens

Routes of Transmission

Bloodborne pathogens can be transmitted in the following ways:

- Injection
- Mucous membrane exposure
- Sexual Contact

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Routes of Transmission

Bloodborne pathogens can be transmitted in the following ways:

- Injection
- Mucous membrane exposure
- Sexual Contact

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Who Is At Risk?

Who Is At Risk?

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Reducing Risk

Both employees and employers need to work at reducing the risk of exposure to bloodborne pathogens.

To reduce your risk of exposure, you should:

- Know how bloodborne pathogens can affect you
- Know how you can become infected
- Know how to protect yourself

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Reducing Risk

To reduce your risk of exposure, you should:

- Know how they can affect you
- Know how you can become infected
- Know how to protect yourself

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Reducing Risk

To reduce your risk of exposure, you should:

- Know how they can affect you
- Know how you can become infected
- Know how to protect yourself

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Universal Precautions

Your employer must reduce your risk of exposure through:

- Universal precautions
- Engineering controls
- Personal protective equipment
- Safe work practices

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Engineering Controls

Your employer must reduce your risk of exposure through:

- Universal precautions
- Engineering controls
- Personal protective equipment
- Safe work practices

Hypodermic syringes with "Self-Sheathing" safety feature

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Engineering Controls

Engineering Controls Example

Retracting lancets with safety features

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Engineering Controls

A container especially designed to accept sharps should be available to safely dispose of any device that may have been exposed to or cause exposure to bloodborne pathogens

Sharps Disposal Container

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Safe Work Practices

Your employer must reduce your risk of exposure through:

- Universal precautions
- Engineering controls
- Safe work practices
- Personal protective equipment

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Personal Protective Equipment

Your employer must reduce your risk of exposure through:

- Universal precautions
- Engineering controls
- Safe work practices
- Personal protective equipment

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Summary – Employer Requirements

OSHA requires your employer to:

- Establish a written program
- Develop engineering controls
- Provide personal protective equipment
- Offer Hepatitis B vaccines
- Establish post-exposure procedures
- Conduct training annually

Copyright © CareerSafe, LLC

Summary – Your Responsibilities

You can protect yourself by:

- Learning about the hazards of bloodborne pathogens
- Making sure you understand your job
- Knowing what to do if you are exposed
- Treating all body fluids as being infectious
- Following safe work and personal practices
- Wearing the appropriate PPE
